

Frequently Asked Questions

Why Are These Companies Included on the 'Do Test' List?

A company may be on PETA's "Companies That Do Test" list for the following reasons:

- It tests its final product on animals.
- It tests any ingredients on animals.
- It uses a third-party supplier that tests on animals.
- It hasn't assured PETA that it doesn't conduct tests.
- It tests on animals "where required by law."
- It tests on animals to sell its products in China.*

*Thanks to PETA's work, the Chinese government has begun to approve non-animal methods for testing cosmetic products. As testing regulations have relaxed, PETA has worked with iconic brands that sell their products in China, including Dove and Herbal Essences, to ban all animal tests.

What if a Company Isn't on Either of PETA's Lists?

If a company you're searching for isn't on either of PETA's lists, we probably don't have information on its testing policies. A company may claim that it doesn't test on animals, but if it hasn't signed our statement of assurance, it won't be listed here. Contact your favorite companies and ask them to join our list!

If you represent a company that doesn't test on animals and would like to be listed in the database, please contact BeautyWithoutBunnies@peta.org to request the application materials to join our program.
